Here the reporter interrupted, saying that Governor McKinney had stated that the regular session would meet in due time to redistrict the State.

"Yes," continued Mr. Hav, "but it will not. The law requires that this work shall be done in 1891. Well, the Legislature (i.e., the next regular session) does not convene until the 3d of December, 1891, and it is always customary to adjourn about the 20th of the month in order to allow the members to get back to their homes for the Christmas always customary to adjourn about the 2013 of the month in order to allow the members to get back to their homes for the Christmas holidays. That leaves only about seventees days of ninety-one, and besides three Sundays intervene during those days. In those few days a United States Senator will have to be elected, and the circuit judges and the basement officers in the Capitol. In order to redistrict a State a very elaborate bill will have to be drafted, which will take considerable time, and then it will have to be gotten through both branches.

"There will not be enough time in these fourteen days to do all of that work," said Mr. Hay, "and I have been a member of the lower branch of the Legislature long enough to know something about it. Nearly every member I have seen agrees with me exactly in this matter."

THE BEST TIME.

"When do pou think will be the best time to hold the extra session?" was asked by the reporter.
"Well, in January or February; it doesn' "Well, in January or February; it doesn' matter which. Just remain in session long enough to do this work and adjourn, and know the people won't kick about the expense. I have never known them to do it yet."

Labor and Tariff Questions.

That the tariff and labor questions have important moral aspects the most superficial student of political economy well understands. More and more the opinion is prevailing that it is allowable in ministers of the Gospe; to discuss these along with other great moral issues of the day. It is not surprising, although it awakens great interest to learn that the well-known preacher, Dr. J. B. Hawthorne, is to lecture in this city (in the Young Men's Christian Association Hall) Monday, November 10th, on "The Ethical Features of the Labor and Tariff Questions." The distinguished preacher has a faculty, so his friends think, of illustrating and vivifying any theme which he discussees, so as to render it highly popular and entertaining. This lecture is said to one of the greatest triumphs of the orator's genius. It was recently delivered at Macon, Ga., to a vast audience, and received the most cordial commendation. A Suit Against the City.

In the City Circuit Court yesterday the cause of Legh R. Page against Preston Beivin, J. Taylor Stratton, W. E. Cutshaw, Lewis D. Crenshaw, Jr., C. N. Goodwin, and H. M. Alport was heard by Judge Wellford. H. M. Alport was heard by Judge Wellford. This is a suit brought against the city of Richmond by Major Page to recover $2,000 damages alleged to have been committed by the city when it lowered Grace street at Fifth street. Major Page lives at the south-east corner of Grace and Fifth streets, and east corner of Grace and Fifth streets, and alleges that he was put to much trouble and expense by the shaping of the grade. The counsel for the plaintiff are Messrs, James Altred Jones, Staples and Munford, and Pegram and Stringtellow. Mr. C. V. Meredith represents the city. Arguments will be heard to-day.

In the Police Court.

In the Police Court yesterday morning, besides the usual number of disorderly cases, only a few cases were on the docket.
Cary Dean was charged with fighting on a Richmond and Danville car. He was fined $10 and costs.

Laney Massey charged with forging a telegram to W. H. Quick, was sentenced to twelve months, and bailed in the sum of $500.

tweive months, and basica in the sum of $5000.

Edmund Palmer was fined $5 and costs for assaulting James Jackson.

James Brown and Robert Mathews were each sent to jail for six months for stealing two turkeys of the value of $3.

After the criminal cases were disposed of a large Friday docket of civil cases occupied the attention of the Court for several hours.

The Bad Debt Collector.

The case of I. Louis Peyser, of Petersburg, charged with sending alleged libelous mail matter to John Shanks, of Crewe, Va., came up for trial before Judge Atkins in the United States Court yesterday morning.

Mr. McIlwaine, of Petersburg, counsel for Mr. Peyser, appeared at the trial and stated to the commissioner that he wished to produce testimony, showing that the case was not a violation of the Federal law bearing upon the mails. Judge Bristow, the assisstant district attorney, was absent from the city, and Judge Atkins was compelled to continue the case until Monday, November 17th, when counsel on both sides can be present.

ONE CHILD.

During his residence herey there was one child—Betty Ordway. Man remember her as being one of the prettiest little girls in Richmond, and when she grew to maidenhood she created a perfect furore in Washington society.

While at the zenith of her social success she married a man named Padelford, who, it is said, was very wealthy. The name was a well-known one in Washington at that time.

During her married life she and her hu

While there she got into some sort of a mess, the result of which was a big scandal. This was immediately telegraphed to America, and the papers for the next few days were full of it.

Later, Padelford got a divorce, and the wife came back to America. She went to work permanent.

It is true that at such points as Buchanan apparently high prices were paid for lots; but outside bears' torget that a multiplicity of pay-rolls, such as is guaranteed at Goshen, for instance, will make lots worth just what the extra cost of substantial buildings plus the original cost of lots will pay interest on. To illustrate: Let us take a $5,000 corner lot. Put a $5,000 building on it, and experience shows that in all good prosperous towns with pay-rolls, such as are guaranteed at Gosher, such an investment will fetch in rents at least 15 per cent. net in rents. Later, Padelford got a divorce, and the wife came back to America. She went to Washington and but little is known of her until she next appears in California. There she got into some other entanglement, the result of which was that she horsewhipped a man. After this escapade had been duly noted by the press, Mrs. Padelford subsided again, and was not heard from until about five years aco.

Where is the proper situs of this increased production? Virginia primarily and the other Southern States next. Mr. Atkinson says this in express terms. All of which means a hundred new towns in the Valley of Virginia and in the Piedmont iron district within lave years.

"No, there is no boom in Virginia. It is simply normal development. The country needs more industries, and Virginia is the situs for such industries. This means the addition of hundreds of thousands of wage-workers to the population of Virginia, for Virginia is the cheapest place for making merchantable commodities produced from iron and timber.

"But after all that I have said, I fear that I have failed to make the main point plain.

And drank champagne from her slipper,"

Mrs. Padelford again dropped into obscurity. Her next appearance was upon the stage, she making her debut as Bettina Girard. She always possessed a beautiful voice and went into opera singing as her first effort. While in that profession a man named John J. Raffael fell in love with her. He told how on that day a Confederate ambulance—an old furniture wagon—conveyed a young captain of artillery, wounded nish unto death, up one of the principal streets of Richmond to a hospitable main sion, where, though a stranger, he was taken in and nourished back to health by ministering angels—Virginia's fair women.

So soon as the McKinley bill was passed thousands of manufacturers set to work to increase the capacity of their plants. Many of these plants it was intended to locate in Pennsylvania and other Northern States. That was part of the programme—to make the profits to manufacturers so great that they could locate their plants in Alaska and still make money. Now they are so far advanced in their schemes for enlarge ment of and addition to plants that they can't recede. Since a doubt has been thrown on the perpetuity of McKinley's high tariff, they must needs look out for locations close to raw material. That means Virginia and the South. And here is food for thought to all who think.

"Let me give a bit of history about The Times. Less than a year ago I came back to Virginia from a long trip into Alabama and Texas.
